

The Beat

June 22, 2008

by Rebecca Haynes Mott

PreTeen Teacher
© 2007 HeartShaper®
Curriculum. All rights reserved.

Permission is granted to reproduce this page for ministry purposes only—not for resale.

Jacob and Esau, Cain and Abel, Drake and Josh. Can you guess what these guys have in common? It's something that 82% of people in our society deal with. It's something complicated by birth order, personality, and how parents treat their kids. It's something that researchers say is most intense between the ages of 10 to 15. It's called sibling rivalry. And it can be tough!

Cain and Abel's story got violent. Jacob and Esau reconciled. And Drake and Josh? Well, the TV stepbrothers split up after finishing their stint on Nickelodeon last year. Next month, however, the two teen stars will reunite to begin filming a new telepic, "Drake & Josh: Best Christmas Ever." Tune in around the holidays to see if their sibling rivalry still rules.

THINK ABOUT IT

- What's one big difference between Jacob and Esau, Cain and Abel, and Drake and Josh?
- How does it feel to be in a relationship with someone you don't get along with?

Sibling Stars

See how many sibling sets from movies, TV, or the news that you can name in a couple of minutes and write them on the board. Which would you say have a bad case of sibling rivalry? Circle them. Who has the worst case? Put a big X on this set of siblings.

What will you do to show love to a sibling or other family member this week?